analyzes the 2008 battle of sadr city and presents insights and lessons learned this analysis advances understanding of urban operations and thereby helps the army focus on what capabilities it will need in the future for such conflicts iraq and the us face a critical transition during the period through 2011 and beyond there is still a war to finish but this is only part of the challenge both countries face no one can be certain whether iraq can achieve a stable level of political accommodation to deal with its internal problems iran seeks to expand it s influence and turkey will not tolerate a sanctuary for hostile kurdish movements like the pkk arab support for iraq remains weak and iraq s arab neighbors fear both shi ite dominance and what that could mean in terms of iran s role in syria and lebanon as well as iraq even if it moves forward towards stability and political accommodation and largely ends the insurgency it will be extremely difficult for iraq to develop all of the security capabilities it needs for even the counterinsurgency mission before the full us withdrawal scheduled to take place by the end of 2011 this could force the us to hand over responsibility to the iraqi security forces before these forces are fully able to do the job it could also force the us to withdraw prematurely the us trainers and partner units that the irs needs to secure the country and defend it from any threat from it s neighbors dealing with these issues will be a critical priority for the us for at least half a decade to come in 2008 u s and iraqi forces defeated an uprising in sadr city a district of baghdad with 2 4 million residents coalition forces success in this battle helped consolidate the government of iraq s authority contributing significantly to the attainment of contemporary u s operational objectives in iraq u s forces conduct of the battle illustrates a new paradigm for urban combat and indicates capabilities the army will need in the future

baghdad kut and an najaf were scenes of concerted attacks by the mahdi army throughout iraq on 4 april 2004 on that afternoon elements of the mahdi army engaged multiple elements of 2d battalion 5th cavalry regiment 2 5 cav 1st cavalry division nearly simultaneously throughout sadr city in northern baghdad twenty soldiers from comanche red platoon 2 5 cav had become isolated in the northern central portion of sadr city and available vehicle assets prohibited the unit s exfiltration soldiers from c troop 2d battalion 37th armor crusaders attached to the 2d armored cavalry regiment conducted a hasty attack into sadr city to relieve the isolated infantry platoon the company attack relief of comanche red and attack to camp war eagle lasted over 3 hours there were many lessons learned from this attack 1 reconnaissance by fire is very effective against strong dismounted opposition in urban terrain 2 during military operations in urban terrain tank units without infantry support need to fight open hatch 3 once battle was joined mahdi army elements demonstrated incredible commitment to recover their casualties and equipment 4 mahdi army elements are inexperienced with the rpg 5 mahdi army elements set many burning roadblocks that had to be destroyed immediately 6 mahdi army elements are intimidated by 120mm main gun engagements 7 120mm heat is better than 50 caliber for limiting collateral damage 8 all tanks require two radios 9 air ground integration during company level attacks is critical 10 communications net selection in mout must remain flexible 11 the battalion staff must constantly update maneuver commanders on the fluid friendly situation in urban terrain 12 commanders must constantly update their crews on rules of engagement roe as the fight develops 13 commanders and platoon leaders should lead from the front of attack formation even when in file or column when fighting in urban terrain
