the probability of a world wide cyber conflict is small yet the probability of forms of cyber conflict regional or even global could be argued as being very high small countries are usually signatories to military and economic alliances with major world powers but rely heavily on the technical ability of these powers in protecting their own national interests they may be considered to be it technology colonies their cyber infrastructure is usually fully imported and their ability to assess it is limited this book poses the question to what extent should or can a small country prepare itself for handling the broad range of cyber threats looking at cyber warfare cyber terrorism cyber crime and associated concerns national experts from new zealand australia the netherlands and poland present analyses of cyber defence realities priorities and options for smaller countries they show that what is needed is the ability of small nations to be able to define and prepare appropriate responses such as the role of military law enforcement business entities continuity and resilience strategies incident response and business continuity plans and more for handling nationally aimed cyber attacks particularly where these address national critical infrastructures a green economy must be built on green jobs the kind of employment that is low carbon intended to reduce energy use and expected to restore environmental quality but attempts to define exactly what a green job is have led to varied and often contradictory answers there are many unresolved questions including whether we consider jobs in the nuclear fuel industry to be green jobs or is a worker at a glass making company which supplies the glass for the solar photovoltaic industry doing a green job given that glass making is a dirty industry this book deals with the relationship between green concepts green jobs green economy green growth and sustainable development it examines to which extent creation of green jobs supports overall economic development as opposed to creation of elitist jobs and greenwashing in order to do so general conceptual frameworks for green jobs green economy green growth and green policy are presented as well as their implementation in ten countries selected among the group of twenty the selection includes advanced the european union the united states of america australia canada republic of korea japan and developing countries mexico china turkey and brazil the analysis presented in this book shows that although green concept is well intentioned its implementation depends on local circumstances economic political and social developed countries perceive green growth as a way to create new markets and demand while developing countries rely more on labor intensive growth and less expensive green jobs thus greening the economy does not diminish differences between rich and poor this book is suitable for those who study and work in ecological economics sustainable development and labor economics
